Side order of crazy comes with role of superstardom

Lately I've been noticing an abundance of celebrity sightings and it seems like they are everywhere. They are in the movies, on TV, and even on the streets. It's almost as if they can't go anywhere without being recognized by someone or something. And they mean it literally.

There are so many examples of this trend that it is hard to pick just one. But one that comes to mind is the trend of celebrities appearing in the news. For example, the story of the celebrity who has been kicked out of a restaurant because of their status. Another example is the celebrity who has been spotted on a flight and has been asked to sign autographs. It's almost as if these celebrities are so used to being recognized that they no longer think twice about it. As absurd as it may seem, this trend is also becoming more and more accepted by the public. It seems like people are no longer taking it as a sign of disrespect, but rather as a form of admiration.

But while the trend of celebrity sightings may be growing, it is also important to remember that there are still some people who value their privacy. Celebrities should be aware of this and respect the boundaries of those who are not interested in being recognized. It is important to remember that just because someone is famous, it does not give them the right to be intrusive. Celebrities should be mindful of their actions and think about the impact they may have on others. Only then can we hope to see a decrease in the number of celebrity sightings and a return to a simpler time where people could enjoy their day without the constant fear of being recognized.

BU opens new old wounds with Marks

Mark Team was once the pure and the saint, the one that we all love. So simple. Someone in his position could be used to this. One of the most notable things about Mark Team was the pureness of his heart and the way he treated others. He was a leader and an inspiration to many. But now, it seems like he is no longer the same. It seems like he is no longer the same as before. It seems like he is no longer the same as before. It seems like he is no longer the same as before.

And if this were clearly the case, that human nature, I have no doubt that the site would fall over and call someone evil or tell them to regulate their stamp of approval on something to see into the academic spotlight for something to do with creating this circus. It is unfortunate that Baylor has tended this whole thing is merely arising from a technicality. That's insult to instruments that are used to separate religious and the common courtesy of honoring politics and a cause, a mean of the United States. It is impossible to explore them all.

Lady Bears to meet tough competition in California

By Garrett Turner

The Baylor Women’s Soccer Team will travel to California State University Fullerton Friday and Long Beach State Saturday to take on two teams in their tough non-conference slate.

“Getting ready to head out to Fullerton and Long Beach State is exciting for our team, but I think it’s also as important as our season,” said head coach George Van Linder. “We have a lot of good young talent and some great senior leadership. Our goal is to be ready for our conference games and get some wins under our belt before the conference championships start.”

Baylor is currently 3-1-2 on the season, coming off a weekend sweep of Miami and New Mexico State.

“I just hope we can get a win this weekend,” Van Linder said. “We are very excited to be playing some tough competition and to have the opportunity to test ourselves against some of the nation’s best.”

Baylor has experienced its share of ups and downs this season, including a 2-2 draw with #14 Miami last weekend.

“We played a great game against Miami and I think we actually played well last weekend,” Van Linder said. “We just need to keep improving as a team and getting better every day.”

With the two upcoming games against Fullerton and Long Beach, Van Linder and his team will look to get their first conference win of the season.

“Every win is important for us,” Van Linder said. “At this point in the season, our goal is to get our first conference win and to keep improving.”

Baylor gets ready for the NCAA Tournament challenge and to test itself against some of the nation’s best. Is there anything Nebraska can do to help the Bears?
